466. View of New Brighton, S. I. J. H. Bufford's Lith. 136 Nassau St. N. Y. Below music title: The / NEW BRIGHTON QUADRILLES / Composed, selected, arranged / and dedicated to / Mrs. George Dearborn, / of New York / BY / JOHN H. HEWITT / PHILADELPHIA / Published by JOHN F. NUNNS, 70 South 3rd St. / Entered...1836 by J. F. Nunns... Left: WITH FIGURES. Right: PRICE 50 Cts. Lithograph.

Page 6: New Brighton Waltz no. 5, accompanies this title. The view of New Brighton from the Bayonne shore is a copy of the design (even to the men working a seine net) of a larger lithograph — P. A. Mesier's Lith. 28 Wall St. New-York — issued, folded, with a pamphlet "Description of New Brighton, on Staten Island, opposite the City of New York." This pamphlet, dated April 15, 1836, was put out by the "New Brighton Association of the Town of Castleton," (as the name appears on the map of the property accompanying this early real estate prospectus, 1835), and signed by its secretary George A. Ward. This picture shows the town laid out in terraces, with, as the text says, "elegant buildings as well as chaste and simple cottages, hotels, and boarding houses, already provided." The language of the text, though richly descriptive, is as chaste as the aforesaid cottages. "These shores," we are told, "are uniformly free from the deposits of nuisances of any kind." An habitual visitor to the Island, of a generation or more ago, can read it all with appreciation but optimism seems to run riot a bit in the statement that "two swift and beautiful steamboats" will make the trip to New York "in twenty minutes."
